What Is The Diagnosis?

This x-ray shows fluid collecting between the parietal and visceral pleural surfaces of the thorax.

A thin layer of fluid is always present in this space for lubrication and ease of movement of the lung during inspiration and expiration.

If the normal flow of fluid is disrupted, with either too much fluid produced or not enough removed, then fluid accumulates.

What is the diagnosis?

Changes to PCO and Red Book Online

Pediatric Care Online and Red Book Online sites are now completely mobile-friendly.

This means that you can now access the PCO and Red Book online from a mobile device and it will display the mobile version of the website.

This will mean that the PCO and Red Book Online apps will be discontinued. If you have these installed on your phone they will not be deleted but you will be unable to update the apps content.

From June 1st please use the mobile version of the PCO and Red Book through CIAP.

Remote Buddy Monitoring with PPE

Onsite “buddies” are not always available to monitor the donning and doffing of personal protective equipment (PPE) in hospitals, especially during a pandemic, potentially leading to poor PPE compliance and increased risk of health care infections.

Does remote video monitoring of PPE donning help improve finding mistakes?

Does Sleep Flush Waste from the Brain?

Why do people sleep?

How does the brain eliminate waste products?

Are the answers to these questions linked?

What Makes a Great Clinical Trial?

Some trials are ground-breaking and grab a great deal of attention.

Others fail to excite.

What makes them different? A recent editorial published in the British Journal of Sports Medicine featured the PEDro Top 5 Trials in 2014-2019 initiative and offers some insights.
